

Hello,

The World of WearableArt Awards Competition is a renowned annual international wearable art event which attracts entries from more than 40 countries around the world each year.

Many of our Competition finalists are students and we love seeing the fresh approach they bring to their unique works of wearable art. Creating a garment for WOW is a wonderful skills development project for students, providing something very tangible to work towards. It is also an opportunity for students to stretch and surprise themselves with what they are capable of creatively. And if selected as a finalist, students are invited to join us in Wellington, New Zealand for Awards week where they will have the opportunity to connect with other designers from around the globe, attend exclusive designer events and be part of the excitement of WOW Awards Night.

The 2023 Competition will officially open for entries on 1 October 2022 but students can start thinking now about what they want to create and begin work on a design in response to one of the section themes. A library of resources for the 2023 section themes can be accessed now via our website.

For students who are entering for the first time in 2023, we encourage them to take a look at the blog that we produced with first-time entrants in mind. We'd also recommend taking time to read about what the judges are looking for, along with the resources that we've made available within the Designer Toolkit on our website.

We are encouraging all students to seize the day and begin their creative journey with WOW for 2023!

To ensure that you continue to receive updates and information from the WOW Competition team, please confirm that you are happy to be included on our tertiaries mailing list by clicking here SUBSCRIBE TO RECEIVE UPDATES

We would also be delighted to support you and your students with information about section themes criteria, online entry process and much more, in an online presentation that covers everything you need to know about the World of WearableArt Awards Competition. Should you be interested in booking a session with us, do contact me and we can look at scheduling something in for you.
